MESSAGE

It is to me a source of deep gratification that we are able to celebrate August 19 this year with the future capital city of the country, named in memory of the late President Manuel L. Quezon, already in the process of being created out of the old Quezon City which he himself founded as a nucleus.

President Quezon was the Father of our Nation. It is proper that to his memory we build and name after him a modern and beautiful capital city which will not only commemorate and honor his patriotism and statesmanship but also give this country, which he brought to the threshold of independence, a fitting and dignified seat for its national government.

I join the officials and citizens of the present Quezon City in doing honor to Manuel L. Quezon on the day of his nativity. I do so not only as President of the Philippines but as a friend and follower who will forever be personally in his debt.

Manila, July 29, 1948

To President Manuel R. Quezon
In everlasting loyalty and gratitude to a leadership which inspired my career and fashioned it in the warmth of a disinterested friendship.

HIS EXCELLENCY,
President Elpidio Quirino

Message

The genius of our people has produced at every decisive era of our history the leader best qualified to interpret its spirit and to cope with its conflicts and problems. Manuel Luis Quezon was one of those chosen geniuses of the race, who emerged at exactly the right stage of our national development to lead our people in the peaceful campaign for independence.

His superb political talents united all classes, parties, and creeds in the pursuit of the common ideal. His flaming nationalism inspired and sustained this union through the most anxious crisis of self-doubt. And his mastery of government and diplomacy led us unswerving to success. Although he did not live to see it, Manuel Luis Quezon was the father of this Republic and it is the patriotic duty of all its citizens to enshrine him in our hearts.

The celebration of his 70th birthday anniversary this year is particularly appropriate. The President and the Congress of the Philippines have thought it fit to establish the national capital of the Republic in the great city that he planned and raised and that now bears his honored and beloved name. From this year onward therefore the Republic will be always identified with its father and founder and the seat of its government will always stand under his inspiring memory, all the better to realize his ideals of social justice and complete independence.

Message

August 19th is a significant day in our history for it marks the birth of a great Filipino patriot and statesman, Manuel L. Quezon. No man of his time was more beloved, respected and honored by his countrymen.

It is but fitting and proper that on this occasion, we bow our heads in reverential homage to him who died and fought for our country. His extraordinary endowment, sterling character and personal traits fitted him exceptionally well for the role he was destined to assume. He cannot escape the accolade of fame and greatness that history will accord him.

In our struggle for freedom and independence, his was the voice that rallied us to the cause. During the darkest hours of our national life, his unwavering courage gave us fresh hopes and renewed life. He was the beacon light in the torturous road to freedom. Today I wish to draw the attention of my countrymen to the colorful and brilliant career of Manuel L. Quezon in the service of the motherland and invite them to rededicate themselves to the noble and inspiring principles, which he upheld in life, and lastly to emulate his example as a servant of the people and above all as a true Filipino.

Message

I am very proud and happy to be able to send my greetings to the people of Quezon City on the occasion of the birthday anniversary of that illustrious leader and statesman, Manuel Luis Quezon.

It is hard to find another man in any country or age who served his people so well and so long as did this great man who dedicated his life entirely to the liberation of his people.

His name will forever be an inspiration to us. We can only be worthy of him by dedicating our own energies to the preservation of those principles for which he fought continuously to the day of his death—liberty, equality and justice.

Message

Seventy years ago, to-day, our beloved late President Manuel L. Quezon was born. In paying him tribute on his birthday anniversary, his shining courage, devotion, and sacrifices to his country's cause come to our mind. He died to gloriously live in our memory and for posterity not to be erased by the element of time. Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo, fittingly said: "As the years recede, Quezon rises to his full stature and takes his place alongside Rizal, Bonifacio, Mabini and other national heroes. Like them, he fought and died that his people might live in honor and dignity among free nations of the world. Like them, he bequeathed a priceless heritage of courage, vision and devotion to duty."

This generation and the generations to come are fortunate to have as their guiding star the shining examples set by our beloved late President Manuel L. Quezon's services to his country. In paying him tribute, let us strive to live and die, if necessary, for the ideals for which he gave his life, and in this way we can show that we are truly grateful for his heroic service in the cause of his people's emancipation.

Message

Quezon City has been made, by law of the land, the capital of the Philippines since July 17, 1948 at 11:15 a.m. Thus is realized the historic dream and fervent wishes of the great man and visionary Manuel L. Quezon. Were he living today, he would have been very proud that the men he left behind had confirmed his vision. He would have been very happy.

I want to thank the members of Congress and their leaders; the Committee on the selection of the Capital Site; and the President of the Philippines, Elpidio Quirino, for having brought this to pass.

I wish especially to thank His Excellency President Quirino because it was due mostly to him that the bill naming Quezon City the Capital City was passed. By his own admission President Quirino knew the wishes and the dreams of the man who did so much for his career. Quezon City was primarily born because of the typical Quezon love for the common tao, his wish that they be attended to by the government, with the aim in view to do the most good for the needy.

President Quezon was the champion of social justice. His was always the avowed mission to protect the rights of the common man and ameliorate his social condition. It is a happy coincidence for Quezon City in particular and the country in general, that the present President is a man of that same metier. It is as though two great men shook hands across the void, over the fulfillment of a worthy dream.

This Act, which originated in the House of Representatives, was finally passed by the same on June 25, 1948.

Approved and Signed by His Excellency, the President of the Philippines, Elpidio Quirino.

On July 17, 1948, at 11:15 in the morning, His Excellency President Elpidio Quirino signed the bill making Quezon City the Capital City of the Philippines. He signed said bill in the Council of State Room in the Malacañan, in the presence of members of the Council of State, members of the capital site committee, the group of technical men who assisted in the planning of the capitol and the city itself and officials of Quezon City.

The Building of Quezon City

By PONCIANO A. BERNARDO

From the original Barrio Obrero Plan of President Quezon grew the vision of a great capital city with wide, straight boulevards criss-crossing the beautiful rolling country, with magnificent buildings and parks—a city truly comparable to the world's best.

IT IS SAID that God made the country and man made the town.

A city represents the living essence of each era, as if all the unconscious combined will of a whole race, all its culture, its sentiments, its aspirations and even its own thoughts and religions had been converted into a fiery molten concentrate and poured into the city structure—into its temples, its cathedrals, its monuments, its arts and sciences, and into all the massive and beautiful expressions of its God-made spirit destined to last for all eternity!

We know this to be true for we have seen ancient Babylon, Tyre, Athens, Rome, and having read the stories of these cities, we have learned ancient and medieval history at the time. The glory of the "Golden Age" was the story of Athens; the history of the Roman Empire and the story of the "City on the Seven Hills" were one; ancient history is partly ancient Babylon.

Because Manuel L. Quezon knew these better than most of us did, Quezon City was born!

But let me start from the beginning. How was Quezon City conceived?

The idea of building a new city was born out of President Quezon's Social Justice program.

The President was looking for an ideal site for his "Barrio Obrero". At that time, many resolutions were brought forward but the President was not satisfied with any of them.

Then, one morning at a breakfast table in Manila, shortly after, it was suggested by Don Alejandro Roces to the President. "Why not buy a large plot of land on the outskirts of Manila, where the land is cheap, and build a lot of low priced homes on it?"

The Diliman Estate, comprising some 1600 hectares of a rolling hilly region back of Manila, was purchased by the government at five centavos a square meter. The People's Homesite Corporation, now a flourishing enterprise, was formed on October 18, 1938.

Once started, the President dedicated his efforts to the realization of his pet project. He made frequent personal inspections with Don Alejandro Roces of the People's Homesite, and directed important activities in its development.

It was during one of these inspections that the President, quick in observation as usual, was impressed with the beauty and desirability of the open country at the outskirts of over-crowded Manila. Right then and there, seeing a high point on the northeastern part of Diliman, he singled it out as the site of a future Philippine capitol.

The first seed germinated there, soon to culminate in the approval of the charter of Quezon City by the National Assembly as Act No. 502, on October 12, 1939. The 1600 hectares of the Diliman Estate was expanded to embrace the new Cubao, San Francisco del Monte, Diliman and University Districts comprising an area of 7335 hectares, with over one-third of its area owned by the government.

AS WE have seen, the President brainchild outgrew even its original purpose. From the admirable idea of providing the working man with a decent place to live in, sprang the more ambitious plan to build a "model city" destined to become the future capital of the Philippines—a city modern in every respect, beautiful and expressive of the national traditions, sentiments and aspirations, providing an ideal location for the national government as well as affording space, not only for a model community for the working classes but also for people of all ranks. Thus the plan for a workingman's barrio grew into a city!

The tremendous significance and far-reaching importance of the creation of Quezon City is not only justified but merits the gratitude of the whole country as it fulfills one of its greatest needs—the need for a model and modern capital for reasons of public health and sanitation, of public safety and even for reasons of beauty. Quezon City answered every specified city need. For historical significance, Quezon City is even hallowed by the blood of heroes. Here, in Balintawak in 1896 Andres Bonifacio sounded the first cry for freedom. Today's Quezon City residents are descended from those brave men who were Bonifacio's followers.

THE PLAN OF QUEZON

The Master City Plan of Quezon prepared by Mr. Harry T. Frost, consulting architect of the Commonwealth, is quoted hereunder:

"Quezon City, unlike Washington and the more recent Canberra of Australia, is an integral part of a great metropolitan district. When its boundaries adjoining the City of Manila were determined, 40,000 people already lived within its limits, in an assortment of barrios and suburbs. At least a half dozen well defined but isolated communities were expanding rapidly and in an unrelated haphazard fashion.

"The farsighted purchase by the Government of a third of the land that was to be Quezon City, and the incorporation within its boundaries of other large undeveloped tracts has made possible the coordination into a broad unified plan of practically the only remaining residence properties near Manila that are susceptible of development on a large scale.

"A Preamble: A CATHEDRAL DECLARATION OF THE PURPOSES OF THE NEW CAPITAL CITY OF THE PHILIPPINES, A PREAMBLE TO THE LITERAL LAW THAT WILL GUIDE IT TO MATURITY, AN EXPRESSION OF ASPIRATIONS THAT CANNOT BE WRITTEN INTO RULES LAID DOWN TO CONTROL THE BUILDING OF THE NEW CITY—THIS, IF IT CAN BE STAGED IN CONCISE TERMS, IS PROPOSED. IT WILL BE A SKETCH OF THE BASIC PLAN, A VIGNETTE OF THE MOTIVES BEHIND IT. WITH THIS IN MIND THE ESSENTIAL ELEMENTS OF THE PLAN OF QUEZON CITY AND THE PRINCIPLES UPON WHICH THEY ARE FOUNDED ARE HERETOUCHED UPON.

"Public Lands: The first objective in the planning of Quezon City is to set aside public lands for the future needs of the Community as a whole. To anticipate the Land requirements of the new Capital for schools, parks and public buildings, not less than enough space, or even just enough, but more than enough according to present day standards should be reserved.

"The second objective is to retard the exploitation of the people by those who would gain control of public lands. No power to thwart unearned private gain from increase in land value on a large scale can be greater than that which rests in the retention of title in government lands. And whether or not slums thrive upon such exploitation, it is certain that the opportunity to prevent them is greater during public ownership than under private control of the lands.

"To build Quezon City as modern culture dictates, subdividers must learn to think of land in terms of people. There should never be need to buy land from private owners in Quezon City for roads, schools and playgrounds.

"Diliman: The heart of the Capital City is the original Diliman Estate. Adjoining Diliman lies the new campus of the University of the Philippines. Diliman contains about 1600 hectares and the campus nearly 500; over 2000 hectares in all, 7 kilometers long and 6 kilometers wide.... Diliman will be the seat of the government.

The greater part of Diliman will be residential. The property along the sides of the Executive and Supreme Court Halls should become the diplomatic and official center of the metropolitan area. There will be other communities in Diliman for the comfortable housing of the people in all walks of life. But the sections for housing the poor will require the greatest care.

"Low Rental Homes: Housing for workingmen must be substantial and sanitary. The economies in planning for low rental homes begin with the street layout. To utilize the natural drainage, they are sloped to the center to insure positive and rapid drainage. Cost-saving feature is the omission of unnecessary streets. By locating streets on ground that is lower than the level of the building lots, by exercising great care to adapt natural drainage, money and land will be conserved.

"Subsidy: for without it the workingman's village will fall below accepted standards.

"Adobe stone is found in abundance in this district. By designing houses with party walls of this material, and by taking advantage of sloping sites, attractive low-cost houses can be designed having floor levels suited to the ground, with the minimum of leveling. There is opportunity in Quezon City and especially in Diliman, for the architect who is in sympathy with the use of local materials and the economic problems inherent in building workingmen's communities.

"Group Housing: Group housing requires the minimum of street area and construction, promotes safety and conserves land.

"Arterial Roads: For Diliman, for the other areas owned by the government and for the entire city which includes large undivided estates, a network of main streets has been laid out to meet the broad needs of traffic. Regarded as an essential part of the arterial road program will be the planting and care of shade trees.

"Local Streets: The properties to be subdivided by private owners as well as by the Government will be made accessible to the Arterial Roads by local streets. Local streets should be treated as purely accessory to home building.

"Water Courses: The natural drainage of the land is ideal. But the natural drainage must be safeguarded.

"Parks: This means space for public recreations. One hectare of park for each 2500 people has been used as a general guide or rule-of-thumb to determine the extent of the park system.

"But large parks for the occasional use of all the people, will be developed on sites that have natural beauty. Parks in this class will include strips along waterways, where many scenic retreats are suitable for sports and picnics. There will be available to the people of Quezon City for recreation within its boundaries a gross total of about 1500 hectares.

"Schools and Playgrounds: School sites are situated where they will best serve the purpose. It is regarded as the duty of the subdividers of private property to donate land for these purposes, consistent with the areas subdivided and with the number of families that it is anticipated will be housed thereon. One hectare is needed for schools and public recreations for each twenty hectares of land to be subdivided.

"Zoning and Commerce: Quezon City primarily is a residential city. It is believed that the commerce and industry of the metropolitan district, the work shop and the market place will remain in Manila. This will simplify the building of the Capital City.

"Business centers have been planned, the essential provisions for traffic have been made. There should be no retail business on narrow streets.

"The use of all private property in Quezon City will be regulated by a municipal code.

"But regulations will not make a fine city; nor will a good plan. If the spirit of the undertaking is grasped by the people who will have a part in its growth, then the new Capital under the guidance of the plan will be a beautiful city.

The above described Master City Plan of Quezon City has provided for all natural and artificial features which will make the city distinctive, beautiful and outstanding. In this plan the natural topography of Quezon City has been taken into account, utilizing natural beauty to advantage.

The following national and city buildings and other activities have been allotted sites in Quezon City: the Congress, the different departments and offices to be housed, also the Capital (not yet definitely decided), the Supreme Court, the Library of Congress, National Archives, the Executive Mansion and offices, Quezon City Hall and offices, National and City cemeteries, Philippine Military Academy, University of the Philippines, all city hospitals, schools, markets, parks and playground, churches, the National Arch and the Philippine Exposition. Aside from public buildings and

The members of the Capital City Planning Commission take their oath of office before His Excellency the President, in the State Council Room at Malacañan on July 27, 1948.

On July 17, 1948, when the President signed the Capital City Bill, the officials of Quezon City presented him with a pen with which to sign the document. The same pen was later used by the President to sign the individual appointments of the members of the Capital City Planning Commission. The pen was suitably engraved, and is here shown being presented by Honorable Ponciano A. Bernardo, Mayor of Quezon City, to his Excellency President Elpidio Quirino.

sites, provision has been made for hotels, commercial, industrial and cultural zones, main business districts and other minor items.

The main feature of Quezon City is the quadrangle of Diliman, bounded by the North, East, South and West Boulevards, which will be the heart of the nation. At the left corner of this quadrangle is the Philippine Exposition site... this site will contain permanent buildings of unusual beauty and design.

In planning Quezon City, the fact has been taken into consideration that the city will be the cultural and artistic center rather than commercial center of the nation. Manila will always be the commercial and industrial center of the nation, and it is expected that it will maintain that position by reason of location, being on the cross-roads of international commerce in the Far East.

However, provision has been made for the normal business and commercial activities of Quezon City.

"To the end that adequate light, pure air and safety from fire and other dangers may be secured, that the taxable value of land and buildings throughout the city may be conserved, that congestion in the public streets may be lessened or avoided, and that the public health, safety, comfort, morals and welfare may otherwise be promoted, it is deemed by the City Council of Quezon City to be erected; to regulate and limit the size and the intensity of the use of lot areas, and to regulate and determine the area of open spaces, within and surrounding such buildings;

"To classify, regulate and restrict the location of trades and industries and the location of buildings designed for specific industrial, business, residential and other uses;

"In establishing such regulations, it is recognized that due allowance shall be made for existing conditions, the conservation of property values, the direction of building development to the best advantage of the entire city, and the uses to which property is now devoted, so as not to deprive the owner of any existing property of its use or maintenance for the purpose to which it is now lawfully devoted."

To avoid the ugly criss-crossing of telephone and electric wires common in Manila, the Bureau of Public Works is now studying a plan for the layout of these wires and power lines underground.

The many subdivisions in Quezon City play an important part in the development of this city. Before subdivisions are approved, a proposed layout plan is first submitted to the City Engineer. In collaboration with Mr. Harry T. Frost the city planner, these layouts are amended to conform with the Master City Plan of Quezon City, all subdivision of the plan have co-relation with one another.

These subdivision owners build their own roads under the control and regulation of the city engineer as regards width, grade and construction details.

Further cooperation of these subdivisions with the city authorities consists in the donation of sites necessary for the city's proper development.

But at the forefront of the gigantic enterprise—that of building a great city—stands the original idea which gave it birth, to provide the common "tao" with a decent place to live in, within his means. The basic motive was never, for a moment, forgotten.

CONCLUSION

We owe much to Mr. Frost, Mr. A. D. Williams, former director of the Bureau of Public Works, Don Alejandro Roces, and to Mr. Vicente Frangente, present director of Public Works, upon whose shoulders the development and construction will rest.

The creation of Quezon City is the realization of the great dream of a great man. That dream is taking shape, the process of erection moves apace.

This new modern city shall be the living symbol of the birth of a nation, the Philippine Republic that shall come into being in 1946. All the combined will of the Filipino people, all its past and present culture, all its aspirations which shall soon be gloriously fulfilled shall be embodied within the carefully planned structure of this city.

And our children shall be able to say, in the words of Ruskin: "See what our fathers did for us!"
